You've Retired, Now What?
Heath Village hosts FREE lifelong learning seminar featuring Centenary University President Dr. David P. Haney at 2 p.m. on Thursday, July 13, 2017.

Washington Township, Morris County – Heath Village Retirement Community invites the public to join our residents for a seminar on the value of lifelong learning and utilizing Centenary University as a resource to help attendees see life and retirement in a whole new way.

The seminar will be held at 2 p.m. on Thursday, July 13, 2017 at Heath Village and will feature Dr. David P. Haney, Centenary University President. Light refreshments will be served.

Today's retirees are living longer than ever and many of them are thinking about what retirement means for them and what they will do during this next phase of their life. Dr. Haney will discuss how taking time to study or develop new ideas, skills, or hobbies is good for one's social, physical and mental well-being. He will also share information about programs available at Centenary University. In addition, Dr. Haney will talk about his ideas for bringing together university students and area seniors.

"I have always been interested in the tremendous opportunities that intergenerational programs offer," says Dr. Haney. "They allow college age students and retirees to see life and retirement in a whole new way."

This is a free event, but reservations are required. To register, please call Melissa Nichols at 908-684-5006.
